Through its Department of Human Development, Education and Employment (DHDEE), the GS/OAS supports Member States in creating policies and implementing programs that promote the development of human capabilities at all educational levels. By enabling educational opportunities for citizens, DHDEE strengthens democratic values and security within the framework of regional integration. DHDEE does this by: (i) supporting the efforts of OAS member states to improve quality and equity in education; and (ii) helping the citizens of the Americas to develop their full potential by providing them with access to knowledge and skills through training that improves the living standards of individuals, families and communities in the region.

Our rigorous, multidimensional approach to education dissolves walls between disciplines and helps nurture progressive minds. At our university, students have the academic freedom to shape their unique, individual paths for a complex and rapidly changing world. With leading-edge faculty and world-renowned alumni, we are committed to developing students who will have an impact on the world and address the most pressing social issues of our time.

AREAS OF STUDY

Within The New School, graduate, professional, and adult bachelor's programs in the Schools of Public Engagement connect theory to real-world practice, training students to study social ecologies, create new forms of culture, and respond to contemporary challenges around the world. Degree programs reflect the diverse ways in which higher learning can be meaningfully put to use in the world and include: the Milano School of Policy, Management, and Environment; the School of Media Studies; the Julien J. Studley Graduate Programs in International Affairs; the Creative Writing Program; and the Bachelor's Program for Adults and Transfer Students. The college also supports a robust language learning program.

DEGREE PROGRAMS

The Julien J. Studley Graduate Programs in International Affairs offers education and Master's of Arts and Master's of Science degrees that prepare students for careers in international affairs with rigorous training as well as an orientation toward promoting a more just world. The program focuses on finding and implementing solutions to real world problems at the global, regional, national, and local levels. Students choose a concentration in which to focus: Cities and Social Justice, Development and Global Justice, Media and Culture, Governance and Rights, and Conflict and Security. Along with traditional classroom study, students have options for field-based and other experiential learning opportunities through a practice curriculum.

Within the School of Media Studies, the Master's of Arts in Media Studies program offers a flexible and interdisciplinary curriculum in media theory and practice with an emphasis on the production of film, video, audio, and emerging media. Students gain experience in creative media making, critical analysis and reflection, and entrepreneurship and management - guided by a faculty that includes noted film and media-makers, researchers, designers, and scholars.

The Master's of Science in Media Management program combines advanced business and leadership capacities with creative production skills to create media that makes a difference. Students receive advanced tools, practical experience, and access to a professional network. Students can plan in-depth study in one or more of the following areas: business development, data analytics, innovation and entrepreneurship, integrated media strategies, marketing and media sales, and project leadership. They can also complete a graduate minor as part of the course of study.

The Public and Urban Policy Master's of Science program within the Milano School of Policy, Management, and Environment prepares students to engage with policymakers through real-world client work and apply a multidisciplinary approach and social justice lens to solving timely and complex policy problems. Students develop the skills needed to evaluate critical public policy issues in real-time, design creative solutions, and collaborate with a diverse set of stakeholders.

Master's degree in Environmental Policy and Sustainability Management program students explore environmental challenges through an approach rooted in environmental justice, intersectional and grassroots perspectives, and Indigenous knowledge. Reflecting growing efforts to promote change by applying the insights of communities, societies, and grassroots organizations with close relationships to the land and its ecologies, students draw on these grassroots perspectives, forms of Indigenous knowledge, and community engagement to critically address social and ecological challenges affecting local and global populations.

Students pursuing an MFA in Creative Writing within the Creative Writing Program join a community of diverse writers, become part of New York City's publishing world, and build a network of support on campus and beyond. The MFA program is designed to help students develop their writing in workshops and literature seminars led by an internationally recognized faculty and renowned authors.
